Deciding whether to go to college, work, university or an apprenticeship upon completion of secondary school is no easy task. The number of courses to choose from is endless. One thing is certain, however, good decisions are based on good planning. Choice of destination will be influenced by students' interests and strengths, as well as course selection and achievement. Determining the appropriate level – Applied or Academic, followed later by Apprenticeship, College, Workplace or University – sets the stage for future career opportunities. In all cases, the need to plan ahead, research, and investigate options is essential. Remember, the most successful people are those who find their passions and follow their heart to a career of their own choosing.
